Letter from the Editor.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 13th, 1843 The tumultuous passions of two chivalrous hackmen, must bear the blame of this letter being written; one of them was my Jehu for the time being, and was conveying my body corporate, together see that it does no harm. with a big trunk, to the Jersey City Ferry, when for certain reason or reasons to this deponent unknown, he got into a squabble with another gentleman with a "rich Irish brogue," and-I was too late by three minutes. I could not hit the Norfolk boat by any later train, and so have to stay over until tomorrow, in a most amiable frame of mind. It must be the comet that makes people so pugnacious. By the way, that grand smash predicted by " Professor, etc.," Jewett, of Fayetteville, hath not yet taken place. It is beound to come off to-morrow-" no postponement on account of the weather."

Neither a Philadephia lawyer, nor the very old Harry himself, could unravel the entanglements of political parties in this State. In common with all Southern Democrats, our sympathies have been, and still are, to a great extent, with the Hunker wing of the Democratic party; but it is impossible to a void the conclusion that, in the difficulties which at present distract the party here, both factions are to blame. It is susceptible of proof that no appointment has been made from among those formerly adhering to the Barnburner schism, where the appointee does not take his stand upon the compromise and the Baltimore platform; and yet, the "hard shells" seek to denounce all such, and ostracise the "softs" for matters behind the record. If political conventions are good for anything-if they serve any useful purpose at all-it is in reconciling differences, and thereby producing united action .-What men, or body of men would go into convention at all, if they felt that, while participating in the organization of a party, and laboring for its success in accordance with the platform adopted, they were still to be considered aliens, and debarred from any of the honors or emoluments at its disposal, in case of success. It would be contrary to human nature, and is a thing not to be expected

To do so, or to have any tangible influence, a paper must be totally free from any obligations to any person or persons whatsoever .-Nobody must own a sixpence or contribute a farthing to its getting up but its responsible editors and proprietors; no paper standing upon any other footing can do a thing here. As for the Whig party in New York, they are like Napoleon's army after the hattle of Waterloo; their morale is completely gone; they can hardly claim the title of a political organ- a collision took place on the above road at Newson's

Newburg is an exceedingly pretty town, of some ten or twelve thousand inhabitants. It is in Orange county, celebrated for its Goshen cheese and butter. About six miles out from town is a beautiful little lake-known as Orange Lake. It is a little gem in its way. The "Orange House, "in Newburg, is kept by Mr. Fanning, formerly of the Carolina Hotel in Wilmington. It is a very fine house, indeed, and my acknowledgments are due to Mr. FANNING, for every kindness and attention during my short sojourn at his house.

Last night I got back from the "Land of Steady Habits," having visited Norwalk, Conn., for the purpose of examining one of Mr. Montague's newly invented Power Presses, which is in operation at the Gazette office there. The Editor and Proprietor of the Gazette-Homen Byington, Esq., very courteously explained everything to my follest satisfaction; and, although of the opposite side of the house, is evidently a very clever and enterprising gentleman. York on Tuesday last at 7.

You have seen that the Jury acquitted Comstock, the Conductor of the train that was precipitated into the river at Norwalk. By the way, the scene of the catastrophe is a very innocent looking place, and shows no indication of blood or murder.

There is no question about it-we might learn much in many things, but especially in house building from the wooden-nutmeg-men. The dwellings along the sound are really beautiful, and more than stone fences. No other kind seems to be used. The place of the late A. J. Downing, Newburg, N. Y., is the handsomest I have anywhere seen.

The "Hard" and "Soft" delegates to the New York Democratic State Convention at Syracuse, which met on the 13th inst., being unable to agree, the "Hards" ceceded and held their meeting at a separate place from the others, and nominated a State ticket, consisting of Geo. The "Softs," or Union Democrats, also nominated out all now Union Democrats. Resolutions were passed by acclamation in favor of the National and State Administrations-in the language of the Inaugural and the Baltimore Platform on slavery, full, explicit, and to the largest extent. In our letter from New York, we have spoken more fully of this matter, and would only remark here, that, in spite of our predilections in favor of the Hunkers, candor compels us to say that, throughout the present affair, they have been most blame-worthy.

The horse, moreover, was dull, so that when thus a ticket, the majority of whom had been Hunkers, stopped, it was very hard to start him again; the poor negro of course, had a hard time of it, and his piety and patience were severely tested. At last they began to give way. The altercations between him and his horse became more violent at every fresh occasion for getting him in motion again. Finally, in a moment of frenzy, he swore away at the horse in a terrific manner.
